
In July this year, around 600 university students from Australia and the Asia-Pacific region will converge on Adelaide for the Asia-Pacific Model United Nations Conference (AMUNC).

As one of the biggest events of its kind in the world, AMUNC brings together the region’s top students and future leaders. Over six days, these students will debate issues of global importance and work towards achieving innovative outcomes through a simulation of the United Nations. These issues include nuclear disarmament, doping in sport, HIV/AIDS, climate change and many more.

Accompanying this will be a myriad of inspirational guest speakers, including Premier of South Australia Hon. Mike Rann, indigenous youth leader Tim Goodwin, youth activist and Senator-elect Sarah Hanson-Young, and former Minister for Foreign Affairs and Trade Hon. Alexander Downer. Further highlights include the International Careers Fair and Taste of SA exhibition.

By night, delegates have the opportunity to experience the very best of Adelaide’s spectacular food, wine and live entertainment. The city’s best venues will be showcased to provide delegates with the ideal forum in which to build life-long networks and friendships, culminating in a gala Finale Ball.

AMUNC is open to all university/TAFE students, regardless of their field of study – even if they know nothing about the UN!

Online registrations are now open, and close on 6 June! Please visit our website at www.amunc.net or email contact@amunc.net for more information.

Early-bird registration fees end on 16 May, so get in fast!
